

NEWS LETTER of the
ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF NORTH CAROLINA

No. 35 Chapel Hill, N. C. February, 1959

PERSON HALL

New Home of the Research Laboratories of Anthropology

After much planning on the part of many individuals connected with the University of North Carolina the newly remodeled Person Hall in the center of the campus has been assigned to serve the needs of the Research Laboratories of Anthropology.

Person Hall is an H-shaped building and is the second oldest on the campus. The original structure was finished in 1797. With the present arrangement the offices are located in the west wing and the east wing contains the laboratory facilities. The central gallery will in the future contain a series of exhibits illustrating the geologic and archaeologic histories of North Carolina. Space is also provided for rotating exhibits to be prepared by students as part of their academic training. Mrs. Robert Cates, a graduate student of Anthropology, has just completed an interpretive exhibit on the life and culture of Brazil.

Members of the Archaeological Society and friends are cordially invited to come to Person Hall when in Chapel Hill to see the exhibits and inspect our new facilities.

Being interested in Indian archaeology, Mr. Doerschuk has collected all types of artifacts from the area of Badin covering a territory of sixty miles up and down the Yadkin River and its tributaries. The Research Laboratories of Anthropology is very appreciative of the fact that Mr. Doerschuk has contributed a vast number of his specimens to the Lab where many are on display at the present time.

John W. Entwistle, RFD #2, Rockingham, North Carolina.

Being a farmer and wood preserver is the occupation of Mr. John W. Entwistle of Rockingham, North Carolina. A graduate of Rockingham High School and the University of North Carolina, Mr. Entwistle is married to Frances Everett Entwistle and they have three boys.

Mr. Entwistle finds not only Indian history and relics of interest but he also enjoys guns, coins, and camellias. In addition to the Archaeological Society of North Carolina, Mr. Entwistle is a member of the National Geographic Society.

George E. Fay, Box #87, Southern State College, Magnolia, Arkansas.

Mr. George E. Fay is an assistant professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Southern State College, Magnolia, Arkansas and has been a member of North Carolina Archaeological Society since August, 1949. Mr. Fay is also a member of American Anthropological Association, Society for American Archaeology, Royal Anthropological Institution of Great Britain, Instituto Interamericano, and many state archaeological societies.

Mr. Fay is interested in contemporary Indian handicrafts, archaeological materials and also enjoys coins, stamps, and music. He has an extensive collection which he used primarily as visual aid material in his college classes. During the summer of 1957 Mr. Fay took a group of students to Mexico on an educational study trip. In addition to having many articles published, he has taken field trips to New Mexico, England, Ireland, and many places in Mexico.

Josephus D. Ferguson, 1015 S. Duke Street, Durham, North Carolina.

Mr. Josephus D. Ferguson, born in Fuquay Springs, first joined the Society in 1957. A graduate of Durham High School in the class of 1943, Mr. Ferguson is now employed as an orthotist at the Duke Medical Center. He and his wife, Hazel McCoy Ferguson, have two children.

Mr. Ferguson has collected many points and is interested in Indian artifacts and geological studies. His other interests include gardening, hunting, fishing, reading and geology.

Robert Kean Ivey, 227 Westmoreland, Lynchburg, Virginia

Mr. Robert Kean Ivey was born and lives in Lynchburg, Virginia with his wife and three children, Robert Jr., Ella Kyle, and Katherine Ann. He attended Woodberry Forest School and the University of Virginia and is now engaged in commercial refrigeration and air-conditioning.

A member of the Society since 1951, Mr. Ivey has collected artifacts primarily from Virginia. He is very interested in potsherds and has about 75,000 which he picked up. Mr. Ivey is also a member of the Society for American Archaeology and the Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania Archaeological Societies. His other interests include collecting antique guns.

Hugh B. Johnston, Jr., Box 572, Wilson, North Carolina.

Mr. Hugh B. Johnston, Jr., an assistant professor in the Modern Foreign Language Department of Atlantic Christian College, attended Atlantic Christian College, Davidson College, University of North Carolina and George Washington University from which he received his M.A. degree in 1946.

Primarily interested in the Tuscarora Indians of eastern North Carolina, their history, life and artifacts, Mr. Johnston has a collection of Tuscarora Indian artifacts found in Wilson County. He also collects antique weapons and books and is interested in the history and genealogy of Wilson County area. In addition to membership in the Society, Mr. Johnston belongs to the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, N. C. Society of County and Local Historians, N. C. State Literary and Historical Association and the National Genealogical Society.

C. W. Lee, Route #1, Advance, North Carolina.

Mr. C. W. Lee, a supervisor for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, attended Monroe High School, Monroe, N. C. and N. C. State College. He and his wife have one daughter and are now living in Advance, North Carolina.

Indian relics, rocks, and minerals are his interests. In addition to a collection of fluorescent minerals and ores of North Carolina, Mr. Lee also has a varied collection of Indian relics from Union County and the Yadkin River Valley. Mr. Lee is also a member of the Winston-Salem mineral club.

Carlos U. Lowrance, 409 Cherokee Drive, Ft. Payne, Alabama.

Major Carlos U. Lowrance was born in Catawba, North Carolina, is married and has three step-sons, James, William, and Lyle Wise. Major Lowrance attended Catawba High School, Trinity Park School, Trinity College and the University of North Carolina from which he was graduated in 1926. In 1919 Major Lowrance also studied at the University of London.

A retired army officer, Major Lowrance in addition to being interested in old guns also enjoys hunting, traveling, literature, and all antique items in general. He is interested in the American Indian and has a very good collection of American Indian artifacts from various parts of North Carolina and a few from other states.

Members of the Society will be interested to know that Major Lowrance has just donated to the Research Laboratories of Anthropology a magnificent collection of items of the Ainu, an aboriginal race living in what is now Japan. Major Lowrance collected the items while he was on occupation duty with the 8th Army in Yokohama, 1946-1949. As soon as possible these specimens will be placed on display in the new anthropology and geology museum on the UNC campus.

Charles McKee, P. O. Box 56, Cordova, North Carolina.

Born in Clarkton, North Carolina, Mr. Charles McKee, a cashier, attended Hamlet High School, Edwards Military Institution and the University of North Carolina.

Using early maps and early historical writings, Mr. McKee enjoys locating and classifying all Indian sites. He has succeeded in locating recording about 100 sites in Richmond and surrounding counties. Mr. McKee's collection includes artifacts of all types such as pipes, points, a stone spade, beads, ax heads and bone material. Mr. McKee joined the Society last year and also belongs to the Clan Mackay Society. He also enjoys reading history, studying maps, collecting rocks and minerals, hunting and fishing.

Betty McMillan, 907 Live Oak Parkway, Wilmington, North Carolina

Mrs. Betty McMillan is married to Dr. James F. McMillan and they have one daughter, Anne, who is one and one-half years old. Mrs. McMillan is a graduate of Reynolds High School and North Carolina Baptist Hospital School of Nursing in Winston-Salem.

Mrs. McMillan is interested in prehistoric cultures of North Carolina and has been a member of the Society since last year. She also is a member of the Society for American Archaeology and the National Geographic Society. Other interests include music and mental health.

Wilmer Maness, R.F.D. #1, Robbins, North Carolina.

Born in Moore County, Mr. Wilmer Maness married Edith Shelton and they now have four children. Mr. Maness is a graduate of Elise Academy and is now associated with Fieldman, Hornaday Hatchery and Feed Company.

Mr. Maness joined the Society in 1957 and is interested in archaeological chronology of the Carolina Piedmont and also in studying artifacts in relation to sites. In addition to an interest in geology and botany, Mr. Maness has a collection of arrowheads and spearpoints.

Clarence E. Norman, St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Monroe, North Carolina.

Rev. Clarence E. Norman is presently living in Monroe, North Carolina where he has been pastor of St. Luke's Church since 1949. He attended the University of North Carolina and was graduated from Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary Columbia, South Carolina in 1924. From 1917 to 1931 Rev. Norman served as a missionary in Japan and in 1933 he became pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Raleigh--a position he held until going to Monroe in 1949.

Rev. Norman has been a member of the Society since 1946 and is interested in astronomy, rocks and minerals and also in English Literature and music.

H. G. Onwake, Gov. Bacon Health Center, Delaware City, Delaware.

Mr. H. G. Onwake has long been a supporter of the Archaeological Society of North Carolina having become affiliated with it in 1933. He graduated from Franklin and Marshall College and later received a M. Ed. degree from Duke University. At the present time Mr. Onwake is assistant director of education and recreation at the Gov. Bacon Health Center in Delaware City.

Mr. Onwake is interested in archaeology of Eastern United States. He has many white clay trade pipes as well as miscellaneous collection of Delaware archaeological material. Mr. Onwake presented his collection of approximately 10,000 specimens to the Archaeological Society of Delaware for its museum. In addition he has directed excavation of the Townsend Site in Lewes, Delaware. Besides being a member of many state archaeological societies, Mr. Onwake is on the Delaware Archaeological Board and also serves as Chairman of the Eastern States Archaeological Federation.

Charles K. Peacock, 1514 Bailey Avenue, Chattanooga 4, Tennessee.
